TUESDAY, APRIL 21, 1891.

One of Benjamin Harrison's latest platitudes is that it doesn't matter who is President of the United States Benjamin Herrison thought very differently in the fall of 1892.

Sixty-(we head of finely bred tratting stock were sold, yesterday, at Tattersalls, in New York, at an average price of $289.30. Eight of the horses sold belonged to Coxey, the Commonwealer. A team of threeothers from $490 to $115, the average price being a little over $200. These horses were all young, one of them had shown a trial of 2:20%, and all many more at such figures he will have to go to tramping in earnest.

As was expected the Republican reorganization in New York city proves to be a reorganization only in name. At the conventions to elect delegates to tre county convention, held last night, the old district leaders bubbed up serenely and captured the organ zation in most of the Assembly districts. The Union Leaguere, at whose demand and under whose direction the re-enrollment and reorganization were made are as far from having a voice in the management of the party as they mere psione the reorganization was effected.

Jesse Seligman, the New York banker, who died, yesterday, at Coronado. Cal. came to this country from Bavarie and by his own indus try, and business tact and foresight accumulated a large fortune. He was always just, tolerant and generous, giving freely of his wealth to any cause that he thought worthy. As President for twenty years of the New York Hebrew Orphan Asylum, which he founded, to the support of which he gave hundreds of thousands, he saved from wretchedness and want hundreds of helpless little ones, and in many other ways he did what he could to benefit and elevate humanity. The world is better because Jesse Seligman lived in it, and greater praise than this can be written of no man.

It is safe to say that if the capital of any European country was the objective point of as many "armies" of cranks and tramps as is Washingbe taken to suppress the armies be- last evening. fore they could unite and become formidable because of their numbers. In this country, however, the infrequency of riots and popular uprisings has begot a cheerful optimism,and because our luck has never failed we take it for granted that it will not now, and, assuming that the "armies" will make no trouble or will be quickly subdued if they prove turbulent, we make a huge joke of their progress, and the newspapers find in Cozey's Commonwealers and the Industrials, that are trying to beat their way east on the railroads, merely a new held to which to exploit their bumor, Bau's of the confidence of the American people that no serious harm can result from the assembling of a isn thousand tramps and vagrants at Washington is the hoom ladge that there is no wide spread poverty or distress to pletify a demind for the government for relief, or to atout examplify for the alleged tollers , h , do not want to tall We all how that one this came a commake and touch and touch in the any contain to than a section [] menden at a, too but, the trace of the year ay facining, with a hiving for their-covers, they have to hard the evance of the contract of the vises fraggle of the transmission not for g emerity mobil. THE MINSTREL EVENT OF THE SEASON Barlen Brothers' Hinstreis at the tasino. This Evenior.

Barlow Brothers' Mammoth Minstrels give a show which goes through from start to finish with most refreshing snap. Not a mement is lost. The jokes are brief, clisp and pointed, and a very fair percentage of them are new. The music is well selected, and the soloists are above the average. The company carries its own orchestra, which appears on the stage in the regulation first part. The stage was handsomely hung with silken drapery. There are ten end men, including Markham, the Kenpards, the Morrisseys and James and Billy Barlow.

After this come several novelties in the form of olion and original special ideas, fun makers and acrebats. The house was large and the applause frequent .- Denver Republic

BEWARE THE BOMB.

I was looking over the papers in the smoking room of a Puris cufe. My eye chanced to fall upon the Echoes of the Singe" column, and I exclaimed aloud AT IT JE JIL

A Franchisca witting near me looked up in wonder as my petulaus some, so I hostened to explain, speaking finencly in very bad Franch:

" Round the World in Eighty Days' is on the boards again. Will they ever have done with that abound affirm? They seems to think it a first equal to the labors of Herenke "

The Frenchman looked shoeled. "Philess Forg was no house than a testoler." I cred beautially. "I could do much better than be"-

"You can go around the world in less than 60 days" saked my houser slowly, and I enswered in the stime tone:

"I will go round the world in 70 days if you like "I take you up!" he cried.

"Wher do you bet?"

"Free thousand francs."

"Done," said I, and we exchanged ourds and bows. That was how it came about that I left Pams for the east on the 5th of Jantary and stepped on board a transationto steamer from a New York pier on the 5th of March. So far I had not lost amongte, and now it only remained to be seen whether I should reach Havre in seven days, as the steamship company bromised. It would be a close share at best. A variety of detentions might ocour. A slight accident to the machinery, and all would be lost.

I was nearly consumed with anxiety, but the ship acted up to her reputation, and on the 12th of March I stopped once more on to French soil.

I cast the ship a look of gratitude as the lay at the Havre pier letting off steam.

from her mongrous boiler. Then I glanced at my watch. It was in the afternoon. There was plenty time for me to dine at my case and eatch the 6:40 express. That would bring me to Pares at half post 11.

I took out my tune table to make sure A. I ran my eye on the column of figure , an inspiration came to me.

"Where's the use of starting this I said to mysolf. iteniisut i there too carly, it will look as if I were afraid of leading the wager. ested in working for those churches, have not caught on to the beautiful simplicity and absolute (sertainty of the cake sale as a device for transferring money from the pocket of the individual to the treasury of a church.

At the risk of being galled symbol or something worse, I am tempted to "write up" a cake sale, not as it appears to the makers and buyers of cakes, but to a disinterested and impartial looker on in Middletows. Of course any woman, when select to make a cake, is only too willing to do so. She has butter, eggs, sugar and flour in the house, and therefore the cake don't cost anything. When the sale is taid Mrs A. Mrs B. and all the rest of the mutresses in the alphabet, each of them inspired by a not unnatural desire to see how much make her cake looks than those of her inspired by a not unnatural desire to see how much make her cake looks than those of her sisters, at end the sale. The takes having-sess them nothing the ladies feel that "hey ought to do something for the church, and so Mrs. A. buys Mrs. B.'s cake, Mrs. B. buys Mrs. C.'s and so on through the ladies feel that "hey ought to come thing for the church and so pays a cake, there is, of course, an obligation for some one to buy Mrs. X's cake when the ladies of her church have a sale. The circle is only widened, the beauty and simplicity of the system is in no way impaired. There is no risk, no investment of sapital, no chance for disappointment A nickelin-the-slot machine doesn's work with greater accuracy,
